

FURLA 2016 Optical Collection

A synonym of style and all-Italian quality the world over, Furla has made a name for itself with its “Italian lifestyle”, which expresses all of its joyful and contemporary essence in the new eyewear collection. This urban-chic line of eyewear, rich in elements that revoke Furla handbags, has been developed following an attentive study of colours and materials. Metal bars, leather inserts, light spots and an ample palette of 19 colours are the characteristic elements of these new styles, where acetate reigns supreme.

Plays of colour and transparency mark these acetate frames. The crystal effect on the front piece emphasises the “colour cube” work on the temples; a technique that has been exclusively developed by Furla for three different optical styles from the 2016 collection, consisting in a combination of small cubes in various colours.

This dove grey acetate frame features a transparent effect on the front piece and solid coloured temples. The customised leather insert on the external side of the hinge creates a charming contrast, both in terms of material and colour; a lime green touch that is also echoed on the temple tips.

The metal bar on the temples unmistakably draw inspiration from the fastening on Furla’s “Cherie” clutch, with this being further evoked by the irregular form of the temples in this acetate model featuring tortoiseshell and coral hues.

Exclusive Furla “colour cube” workmanship is also featured on the temple tips of these sunglasses. The subtle satin-finished frame is both colourful and lightweight; a style that has been rendered particularly fun, not only by the colour, but also by the rounded form of the front piece and the double bridge.

These sunglasses take their cue from the resounding success of Furla’s “Metropolis” it-bag. Available in 4 variations, all with the exclusive print, this model recalls the bold lines of the celebrated shoulder bags and the playful and versatile style that made them such a huge international success.
